This has been a turbulent week on the geopolitical front, triggering waves in the stock market and sending the price of crude oil through the roof. While the stock market corrects itself (as we anticipated), the price of crude oil seems to be creeping ever higher, putting upward pressure on the price of fuel and energy. Worse still is the serious effect this could have on the economic recovery that everyone has been banking on.[\[marketoracle\]](#) There's no way of knowing how events will unfold. Since the current oil price is always the best predictor of the future oil price in the very short-term, I predict that Nymex WTI will be priced in the $93-$104 range on March 12th.
